

Post-Doctoral Fellowship for Addictions Psychologist. The Department of Psychiatry, in the School of Medicine at the University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio, has an exciting opportunity for a Post-Doctoral Fellow to join a rapidly growing program of outpatient addictions treatment and research. Training will involve participation in an active program of federally-funded research and also working with a multidisciplinary team providing clinical care of community outpatients with diverse problems of substance use disorder and other co-morbid Axis I conditions. Supervision of the planned 2-year fellowship in clinical and research training should provide all necessary opportunities for licensure. Successful applicants must have completed a doctorate in clinical psychology and a psychology internship from an American Psychological Association accredited program. All Postdoctoral appointments are designated as security sensitive positions. The University of Texas Health Science Center at San Antonio is an Equal Employment Opportunity/Affirmative Action Employer. Interested applicants should send a curriculum vitae and contact information to John D. Roache, Ph.D. at roache@uthscsa.edu.
